He eventually won the set, which lasted only 36 minutes, at 6-2.

From this out the issue was never scriously in question. At the outset the main hope for the Australian was that Parke should be off his game, but Parke was not off his game. He was a shade more cautious than when facing Brookes, and he made fewer sensational shots, but his work from the base line, both with fore and back Excitement is growing among the nand, was marvelously sound, and chance offered, and he was beaten. not because he played badly, but because he met a better base-liner than himself.

When both men were hitting from the back line Heath often hit brilliantly, but Parke hit on the whole more consistently, with a greater command of length and distance, and with less liability to make mistakes, and that was how he won the Davis Cup for the British Isles, After beating Heath 6-2 in the first set, he beat him 6-1 the second, and after the Australian had made a gallant fight up to four all,

With a strke wanted to give Britisher the match, Heath failed at a difficult return. The cup was England's and on the instant the British representative, with the victory that he had come 10,000 mfles for in his grasp, ran impetuously on the court and flung his arms round the man who had crowned his tour with victory, while the crowd, vented its feeling with cheer after

Of Parke's play in the match against Brookes on the first day, the Sydney Sunday Telegraph says: ..

It was soparent to everyone as soon as the match was over that a new star had risen on the tennis horizon, and quite one of the most brilliant that had ever shone there. Brookes played well but Parke was over him. Up to the time he was leading 4-1, in the first set there was no semblance of a flaw in the Australian champion's game. He followed his service up to the het, anticipated the return with his usual unerring judgment and killed it with the quick, crisp volley of which he is a pastmaster. He did this not once but a dozen times in the first few games, and looked like doing it triumphantly all through the match. Against any other player than Parke, he doubtless would have done it, but the Irishman, as the game went on, developed a pace and a severity in his returns which even Brookes could not anticipate, and even Brookes could not master. It mattered not to Parke King's New Year's honors include a what pace the ball carried, or from inch in which to pass the Australian, he passed him. The Fallacy of Buying a "Discount" Automobile

When you buy an automobile at a cut price, you forfeit more than you gain. There are two kinds of "Discount" cars-those that are purposely listed at a high figure so that their price may be cut and those on which the dealer divides his profit. Cars of the first named class have no deffnite value. The prices at which they are sold are seldom the same to any two buyers. While you might receive a 10 per cent discount as likely as not some other buyer is given a 20 per cent cut.

Since no two have paid the same price, there is no basis of valuation if you ever wish to re-sell the

You should just as persistently avoid the dealer who divides his profit. You cannot afford to patronize an automobile

Don't buy any car that does not carry with it a complete service from the dealer.

By securing even a 20 per cent discount you put yourself in a position to pay double that apparent saving in repair and service charges, before the dealer or manufacturer who is not prosperous. A car is not of as much value if, once having been represented in the community, it no longer is sold

If dealers split their profits, they must sooner or later go cut of business. They cannot stand back

And after all, that is the biggest item to consider,

of the car with the service it should have.
